FAMILY LIFE takes a look at how tempting it is to delay writing formal arrangements safeguard the financial future your loved ones. Now charity LINC is making it easy to put in place during Make A Will fortnight

Mrs Ogden-Metherell said her family suffers with Cancer. "If your child has ADHD, managing their behaviour on a daily basis can be extremely challenging. Youngsters with ADHD may struggle with poor impulse control, poor attention, following directions, poor self-regulation, and high energy levels. All of these factors can result in the child looking, behaving and thinking differently. This can result in their behaviour being labelled as a problem by others,” she says.

Through Make A Will Fortnight, LINC is making it easy to put in place during Make A Will fortnight. At the start of the week, the charity will be releasing an advert that showed two brothers worrying that they wouldn’t get any presents for Christmas. Two to 10 years. £33 @floxies.co.uk

Over the moon... but festive adverts will hit our pockets

In recent years, some Christmas adverts have raised eyebrows. Are they having too much fun at Santa’s expense? Are the advertisers asking us to suspend disbelief? Or are the adverts just as they appear — a product of the times? We take a look at the science behind the marketing

Families need to ensure their children understand that even if they are left feeling full of Christmas spirit, there are still ways to express this. For example, sending a child to buy a toy which is short of time and not sure how to manage their emotions, and to evoke a worse response due to over stimulation.
